August 12, 1857.

Sin: An appeal has been taken by Mr. George D. Parish, of Philadelphia, from the decision of the collector at that port as to the rate of duty to be charged on certain fabrics composed wholly of cotton, and known in trade as "cords or corduroy," "velveteens," "moleskins," "dreadnaughts," and "repellent moleskins." "The collector assessed the duties upon these several fabrics at 24 per cent, under schedule C of the tariff act of 3d March, 1857, as "manufactures composed wholly of cotton, which are bleached, printed, painted, or dyed." The importer contends that duty should be assessed at the rate of 15 per cent, as "velvet in the piece, composed wholly of cotton," under schedule E of that tariff.

The fabrics in question do not appear to be now, nor wholly of cotton," under schedule E of that tariff.

The fabries in question do not appear to be now, nor ever to have been, known in commerce as "cotton velvets," nor are they specifically designated, under their commercial names, in any schedule of the tariff. Being composed wholly of cotton, and dyed, they fall within schedule C of the tariff of 1857, as "manufactures composed wholly of cotton, which are bleached, printed, painted, or dyed," and were properly charged by the collector with a duty of 24 per cent. ith a duty of 24 per cent.

The decision of the collector is affirmed.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, HOWELL COBB, J. B. Bakun, Esq., Collector, Philadelphia, Pa.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, August 11, 1857.

August 11, 1857.

Sra: This department has had under consideration an appeal under the fifth section of the tariff act of March 3, 1857, of Messrs. Stuart & Brother, of Philadelphia, from the decision of the collector of that port, as to the rate of duty to be assessed on a fabric composed wholly of cotton, and known in commerce as "gingham."

The collector has assessed the duty on the article in question at the rate of 24 per cent, as embraced within question at the rate of 24 per cent.

the classification of "all manufactures composed wholly of cotton, which are bleached, printed, painted, or dyed," in schedule C of the tariff of 1857.

in schedule C of the tariff of 1857.

The appellants contend that the processes of bleaching and dyeing are performed before the "gingham" is manufactured, and that the fabric does not, therefore, fall within the description of schedule C of the tariff of 1857, within the description of schedule C of the tariff of 1857, but should be classed as a "manufacture composed wholly of cotton not otherwise provided for," in schedule D of that tarif, and be charged with a duty of 19 per cent.

"Ginghams" are not specially named in any schedule of the tariff of 1857.

The terms in schedule C, "all manufactures compose I wholly of cotton, which are blenched, printed, painted or dyed," refer to the character of the article at the date of importation into the United States. It is immaterial at what time or in what order, in the course of manufacturing the fabric from the raw material, the processes of blenching and dyeing were performed. If on importation the article is a bleached, printed, painted or dyed manufacture, consisting wholly of cotton, and not designated in any other schedule of the tariff, it is liable in that classification in schedule C to duty at the rate of 24 per cent.

"Ginghams" being clearly embraced within that de cription, your decision, charging them with a duty of 24 per cent., under schedule C, is affirmed.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

HOWELL COBB,

Secretary of the Treasury.

THE ROUT OF KNOW-NOTHINGISM IN TENNES-SEE.

The Memphis Bulletin of the 8th inst., an old-line whig paper, (now neutral in politics.) thus alludes to the complete know-nothing rout in Tennessee:

The returns which reached us yesterday confirm the supression that there has been a complete and universal rout of the American or know-nothing organization. It is more in the nature of an accomplished revolution—an emphatically pronounced vertict of popular condemnation—than of an ordinary triumph of political party. It is the death-knell of the peculiar and distinctive organization which assumed to guide, direct, and control the elements of opposition to the democratic party. The "experiment" has worked out to its end and consummation, and the result is wide-spread and irretrievable disaster. In tumbling to its "ruins" it has dragged down, we fear, some good men, whose talents would have been useful in the public service, and whose personal worth, under any other circumstances, would have enabled them to overcome the ordinary oppugnation of political party. The returns which reached us yesterday confirm th

Gen. Harris's majority in the State, from present ap pearances, cannot be much less than ten thou perances, cannot be much less than ten thousand, while it may leap up, from aught any one can calculate from the present aspect of the political battle-field, to fifteen thousand. It is the most remarkable result of a political contest in Tennessee that has transpired since the Harrison whig deluge of 1840; and, like that, marks a new era of the party politics of the State.

The Louisville Courier of last Friday's issue contains a full and glowing report of the great barbecue given at Ashland, Kentucky, on the 12th, by Hon. J. B. Clay. In calling attention to the report, the ourier observes:

Courier observes:

"A more lovely and beautiful spot for the festivities than the woods of Ashland could not have been found under the broad canopy of heaven, and a more fitting place could not have been selected where old-line whige and democrats could unite in congratulations at the triumphant success of constitutional principles, and join hands in piedging united and earnest co-operation in securing to themselves and their posterity the priceless blessings and privileges we enjoy.

"There was an immense concourse of gentlemen and ladies in attendance—the number present being variously estimated at from six to eight thousand—many eminent and distinguished gentlemen from this and other States being of the number. There were speaking and dancing and eating enough to satisfy the inclinations and tastes of all. The munificent hospitality of the proprietor of Ashland was the theme of admiration. tor of Ashland was the theme of admiration. His beautiful house and grounds were thrown open to his visiters, and all were made at once to feel themselves at home. The dinner was sumptuous and the supply profusely abundant. Burgoo that would have tempted the palate of the veriest epicure, and fat lambs and delicious mutton, and those 'best bloods of Ashland,' were served up in a style of unsurpassable excellence.

"The speaking was most excellent. We have never on any similar occasion heard as good. The orators were all exceedingly happy. They were each introduced to the assemblage by Hon. John C. Breckinridge, the Vice President of the United States, in his own immittable manner. The speeches were all of exactly the right length; they were to the point, and they all gave intense delight to the thousands of eager listeners. Breckinridge, delight to the thousands of eager listeners. Breckinridge, Clay, Anderson, Willard, Hammond, Preston, Holt, Tal-bott, Robinson, Porter, Wickliffe, and Lindley all made telling speeches.

"The weather was fine, and everything passed off as it egan—most auspiciously. It was an era of good feeling etween old whigs and democrats, who were working houlder to shoulder for the welfare and glory of their country, which it did the patriot's heart good to see.
The Ashland barbeene will long be remembered with

GENERAL SUMMARY.

Tex Tasung.—A New York writer gives the following particulars of the effects of "tea tasting" and sampling upon the constitution of those engaged in the business:

"The death of a famous tea broker in this city lately calls to mind the curious nature of his business. I wonder if any of your readers at the West know that their fastidiousness in the choice of the herb which cheers, but der if any of your readers at the west know that their fastidiousness in the choice of the herb which cheers, but not inebriates, is the cause of the establishment of a profession—called 'tea tasting'—which is as certain death to a man as the continued practice of oppum eating. The success of a tea broker or taster depends upon the trained accuracy of his nose and palate, his experience in the wants of American market, and a keen business tact. If he has those qualities in high cultivation, he may make from $20,000 to $40,000 per annum while he lives, and die of diceration of the lungs. He overhauls a cargo of tea, classifies it, and determines the value of each sort. In doing this, he first looks at the color of the leaf and the general cleanliness of it. He next takes a quantity of doing this, he first looks at the color of the leaf and the general cleanliness of it. He next takes a quantity of the herb in his hand, and breathing his warm breath upon it, he saufis up the fragrance. In doing this, he draws into his lungs a quantity of irritating and stimulating dust, which is by no means wholesome. Then sitting down at the table in his office, on which is a long row of little porcelain cups and a pot of hot water, he draws' the tea and tastes the infusion. In this way he classifies the different sorts to the minutest shade, makes the different prices, and is then roady to compare his work with the invoice. The skill of these tasters is fairly marvellous, but the effect of the business on their health is, as I have said, ruinous. At the end of a hard day's work they feel and act as fidgety and cross as a hysteric old maid."

THE PAINTINGS IN THE ROTENDO. - Four of these pain ings are the work of Colonel Trumbull, a soldier and artist of revolutionary times to wit; "The Declaration of Independence," "The Surrender of General Burgoyne, 1777," "The Surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown," and "The Resignation of General Washington at Annapolia, December 23, 1783." In the execution of the first of these, Col. Trumbull devoted himself with untiring real and industry, travelling from one part of the Union to another to collect the original soderid for the great de-sign, it being his ambition to transmit to future genera-tions a true representation of the great actors in the evermemorable scene. "The Surrender of General Burgoyne, 1777," to General Gates, of the American army, at Saratoga. New interest will be added in the contemplation of this picture when it is remembered that it contains likenesses from life of Generals Gates, Burgoyne, Stark, Morgan, Schuvler, Putnam, and many other distinguished officers; and that Burgoyne was "the intimate friend and companion of Burke, Fox, and Sheridan; was him self an accomplished scholar and wit, basking in the sunlight of favor, and had but a few months before prom ised his sovereign that he would speedily crush the rebels, and restore peace to his revolted colonies—nay, more: that he was under a promise to meet Clinton at Albany, but that when he reached that city a prisoner his friends had turned back from the highlands, having been unable, even with the treachery of Arnold, to approach nearer to Albany. "The Surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown" "represents the closing scene of the great revolutionary drama. Though Washington was present, e yielded to Gen. Lincoln the honor of receiving the word and the surrender of the conquered leader of the enemy." The picture of "The Resignation of Washingn' contains, among other persons, the family of Wash-gton, and Charles Carroll and his two daughters. The 'Baptism of Pocahontas' was designed and executed by Chapman to fill the panel assigned to him. "The Discovery of the Mississippi by De Soto' is by Powell. The design and composition of this painting has been some-what severely criticized; at the same time its execution is generally acknowledged to be more than excellent; for instance, it is objected that while two Indian women, gracefully reclining on one side of the picture, seem perfectly comfortable without any clothing, a man on the opposite side is clad with a huge buffalo robe. peculiarly interesting as being the opening scene of American history. The "Departure of the Pilgrim Fathers in the May Flower" is by Wier, and excites universal admiration. A writer says of this picture: "We have stood for hours before it, and then returned again and again, each time to see new beauties, and to gaze upon that be ing of surpassing loveliness, the wife of Miles Standish. It is the very ideal of Saxon beauty—the eyes clear, deep, fearless, as a woman's eyes may be, yet devotional and confiding; they are turned upward, speaking the woman's trust in her husband and the soul's faith in its God. There is no Grecian outline in the features—no angelic perfection in the face; it is simply the countenance of woman beaming with intelligence and love. Miles Stand-ish has features and form which challenge admiration, while the pale, sick boy, going forth on the tempests ous ocean, touches deeply our pity and sympathy. Normust we forget the man of God, who, from the Bible, is finding meet words of hope and consolation for this brave band, who, for conscience sake, are about to seek a home in a far-off and inhospitable country, where faith and religion may dwell together in unison, without fear or re
